7 Patrick Palema won for Åke Svanstedt in the US in May last year. Nice horse who opened fast behind the gate then. Our pick in this Norwegian debut. 9 Kanye would have fought for victory without a mistake at the end two starts back. Has good speed if he avoids a mistake and is an early challenger. 8 Vallatonian is poorly drawn but can open fast. Should be improved by the last run after a short break. 5 Icarus B.R. had got a long pause before the last start. Is certainly better this time. Outsider.

8 Tusse Gutt has three second spots in a row and should have a good chance here. The horse was brave after a trip from outside the leader in the last run and is in good shape. Top chance. 6 Glitrende Tider finished well to third two starts back. Is consistent and good but does not win very often. Contender. 10 Mio found room late on Bjerke and finished well. Won five races last year and could be dangerous here. 7 Turbo Teddy has shown good form in the last two starts. Likes the short distance.

4 Watch Me Explode finished strongly to a second spot in the last run and is in good shape. Nice number and could score the first win ever here. 6 I'm All In is a quick starter and will go for the front despite this number. He galloped directly in the last run. Early choice. 7 Devilish is better than the latest results show. Finished strongly to fourth two starts back and is an outsider now with the right trip. 9 Elio got a nice inside journey in the last run and finished well. Could get a nice trip with this number.

6 Chuck Yeager is our pick. He was interfered on the far stretch in the last run but came back well to second. With the right journey he is our winner here. 2 New Yankee is well drawn and this distance should be an advantage. Good place chance and the main challenger. 8 Okashi Cheri comes from Gävle and will travel all the way to Norway. Finished well to second two starts back. Possible but needs some racing luck with this number eight. 5 Demerara has quite good speed for this short distance. Outsider.
