2 Kuiper qualified in good time and seems ready to perform at a high level right away. Wäjersten's choice in this race and an interesting three-year-old. 7 Västerbo Henry is also a three-year-old debutant and he recently qualified for trainer Bergh. Seems to be in good shape right away. 4 Mellby Lucky ran two races as a two-year-old but didn't impress. He is now trained by Wäjersten and should be considered directly in this seasonal debut. 6 Baron Vox got a tough journey in the last race and fought well outside the leader in the last half lap.

6 Invisible Sun won the debut for Per Linderöth but got interfered in the last run at Solvalla. This is a horse with great ability and our winner pick. 4 Louis has been trying his luck in higher class races lately but without success. Easier now, and he could find the lead where he performs at his best. 9 Mon's Tornado had a strong season last year with five wins. It's his first race of the year and starting from the outside post is a bit risky. The long distance is not a disadvantage. 1 One Chance More was competitive against strong competition as a three-year-old and has a race under his belt.

5 Global Currency showed good potential with four wins last year. Quick starter and most effective from the lead, with a gifted driver for this race. 1 Vichel J.C. has improved significantly this year and with a quick start as a strong weapon, the starting position is perfect. A challenger. 6 Icicle Am was impressive in the season debut after a fast start and the distance and number suit the horse well. 3 Landing Data made a great comeback with a win but faced too tough opponents last time. An outsider.

5 Don'taskdon'ttell have we been waiting for. There is more to this horse than what we have seen so far, despite a couple of good results lately. finished to an impressive win in the last race. 3 Prince Heritier performed better in the last race and fought well against a strong competitor on the home stretch. A strong contender. 8 Roberto U.R. won immediately in the debut for a new trainer, and even if the race was not very competitive, he looked very nice. This horse is fast but nervous. 11 Didicoy has a strong record with six top-two finishes in nine starts. Showed a good performance after a mistake in the last race.

2 Envis faced tough competition last year and showed good skills against his age group. He has four wins and good earnings, and has competed against tough horses this year. A top pick. 6 Wilda Leffe showed good speed to win last year, but is known to be a bit tricky. This will be the first start for new trainer Tjomslund. 1 V.Viking scored an impressive win earlier this year, but he has been a bit unlucky lately and galloped. Nice number. 9 Fjasko had a nice season last year with nine top-two finishes in 15 races.

4 Gooner rapidly climbed the ranks last year and earned over 850,000 SEK. Showed great form in the seasonal debut and finished second in an impressive time behind Don Fanuzzi Zet. 3 Huddleston wins often and scored nine victories last year. Has continued to perform well in the V75 this winter. Seem in strong form. 6 Axel Ruda has had a strong start to the year, earning over half a million kronor. Had an easy win from the lead in his last race at Solvalla. 7 Hannibal Face is also a horse with a high V75 standard. Had a great season last year, but there are question marks about his performance in the last race.

7 Ragnhild W.M. scored many wins during the autumn and was successful in bigger mare races. She competes in a new class here but faces nice conditions and meets only mares. She is our winner pick. 12 Borkmira travels from Norway and is certainly well prepared. She was a good second behind the talented Alma Prins last time out and faces easier opposition now. 10 Ängsthea has been in good form and her second-place finish at Solvalla last time out was impressive. Tight starts are a plus. 9 Klack Nova showed last year that she is good enough for this type of race. This driver is an advantage. Outsider.

14 La Sassicaia showed great skills last year and is a good V75 horse. Seasonal debut now and faces only mares. Despite this number in the second line, she is our winner. 4 Be Sober is quick and can take advantage of this number. Led until just before the finish line last time and is a top contender for the lead. 2 Bovary Face has done well for the new trainer. Has been a non-starter a couple of times recently and the form is a bit uncertain. Has good potential though. 10 Shehuntyoudown is tough after facing strong opponents. This number is good and she faces nice conditions money-wise.

1 Chitchat won both a heat and a final in the V75 during the spring and this horse seems to be very gifted. Has reloaded the batteries and will be difficult to beat here on the home track. 7 Rio Alta Wine scored a tough win in the V75 from outside the leader two starts back. Is strong enough to do it tough here too. 5 Global Crusader won six races last year and comes from a second spot in the seasonal debut. Opens fast and possible behind the favorite. 3 Holy Moses Mearas found the right form last year for Sandra Eriksson. On the way up now with a race under his belt.

1 Sangviks Lynet won despite a big mistake in the debut and showed great speed for this class. More experienced now and he will be hard to beat. 4 Guli Rufus is a well-bred three-year-old trained by Jan-Olov Persson and we have respect for him in his debut. 6 Cali Lancelot had some issues in his initial races but galloped still fighting for victory last autumn and has good skills. With a recent race under his belt, he is a contender. 2 Lome Lotus is a nice trotter who is certainly improved by the recent races. He should not be overlooked.
